Easy Read

This is an Easy Read version of some information. It may not include all of the information but it will tell you about the important parts.

This Easy Read booklet uses easier words and pictures. You may still want help to read it.

Some words are in bold - this means the writing is thicker and darker.

These are words that some people will find hard. When you see a bold word, we will explain it in the next sentence.

About this booklet

West Midlands Railway (WMR) is part of West Midlands Trains (WMT).

WMT provides train services and runs 148 stations in England.

We are suggesting some changes to our stations and the way staff work to help our customers.

This booklet will tell you about the changes we are suggesting, and which stations will be affected.

Before we make a final decision, we want to know what you think.

Please tell us what you think before Friday, 1 September 2023.

You can tell us what you think by email: TicketOffice.WMT@transportfocus.org.uk

Or post:

Why we are suggesting changes

People use ticket offices much less than they used to.

Most people now buy train tickets online or use a ticket machine.

By closing some of our ticket offices we can move staff out to help more people in our stations.

We think this will mean we can give everyone a better service.

Our changes

The staff from our ticket offices will be trained to give people help and advice at our stations.

We will carry on giving extra help to people who need it most, like our disabled and older customers.

We will have more teams of staff who travel to different stations called 'mobile teams'.

Mobile teams will:

- Help disabled and older customers.

- Keep stations safe and tidy.

Frequently asked questions

These are some of the common questions we have been asked about the changes, and our answers.

They are called 'frequently asked questions'. Or FAQs for short.

Will the changes be unfair to disabled or older people?

We will make sure disabled and older people get the help they need to use our train services.

We think the changes will mean we have more staff available to help all our customers.

How will the changes affect people who can't, or don't want to buy tickets online or use a ticket machine?

Many of our stations with ticket machines will have staff available to help people use them.

Our new retail and customer service hub stations will still have ticket offices for people to buy tickets from.

People will be able to call our customer service phone line and order tickets to be picked up from ticket machines.

We will arrange for people to be able to collect tickets from some local places, like shops. these will be called 'ticket stops'.

Do I still need to buy a ticket before getting on a train?

Most customers will be able to buy a ticket from a ticket machine, and staff will be available to help use them at certain times.

If you cannot buy a ticket before you get on a train, you should let the train conductor know as soon as possible.

How will you make sure that stations that have staff now, won't be left without staff because of the changes?

We will work carefully to make sure all our stations have staff available when people need them most.

We will keep checking that we are putting the right number of staff in stations at the right times.

How will passenger assistance be managed?

Passenger assistance is a service that helps disabled and older customers to use trains and train stations.

Our new hub stations will have staff that can move around to help disabled and older customers.

Train conductors will be able to help people on and off trains at stations where there isn't a member of staff available.

What will be happening at the stations that your trains go to, but are not run by your company?

You will need to go to the website of the train company that runs those stations to find out about any changes.

See page 17 for more information.

If I want to tell you what I think about the changes, when do I need to do it by?

You need to tell us what you think by Friday, 1 September 2023.

You can tell us by email:
